Rarely do we see a residential parcel that combines this kind of rugged privacy with such dramatic vistas. The View: You're looking at incredible, sweeping views of the river and the rolling Ozark countryside. It's the kind of scenery that makes coffee on the porch a non-negotiable part of your morning. The Adventure: Yes, the property technically reaches the water! However, the trek down is strictly for the 'Billy goats' among us--unless you're ready to carve out your own custom trail to the riverbank. The Build: With the heavy lifting of clearing and access already handled, this is a blank canvas for a home that embraces the elevation.
