Tucked away in Wright County, this 60+/- acre property offers the privacy, beauty, and freedom that make the Ozarks such a special place. With direct frontage along State Highway E, the land provides easy access while still offering a secluded setting with mature timber, rolling terrain, and established trails throughout. A spring-fed pond, fed by multiple natural springs flowing from the hillside, provides year-round water for wildlife, while the mature hardwoods include numerous marketable trees. Multiple access points make the property easy to explore, and electricity is already available on-site. Remnants of an old homestead, including a visible well head, offer a glimpse into the property's history and a potential starting point for future improvements. Whether you're looking for a great hunting tract, a quiet weekend retreat, or a place to build your Ozarks home, this property offers the natural beauty, privacy, and opportunity you've been searching for.
