This is what a Stockton Lake house is supposed to feel like. Recently remodeled from top to bottom, positioned on two lots, and located in a lake community with private boat access to Stockton Lake, this 2-bedroom, 2.5-bath home brings together the setting, access, and quality of finish that make a lake property worth owning. The main level is built around natural light, with large east-facing windows bringing the outdoors into the living space. A wood detailed ceiling adds warmth, while a wood burning fireplace anchors the room. The kitchen opens directly into the dining and living areas, creating one inviting space for everyday living and entertaining. Updated finishes carry throughout every inch of the home. The spacious primary suite features a private bath with dual vanity, custom walk-in shower, and walk-in closet. Rounding out the main level are a separate half bath, laundry room, and pantry providing additional storage. Downstairs adds another dimension with a second living area, home office space, sauna, full bath, and oversized bedroom. This private lower level works equally well for family, guests, or multigenerational living. Direct patio access allows for easy outdoor entry without disturbing the rest of the home. Outside, mature trees and multiple gathering spaces create an inviting setting. The upper deck offers a view
